

Drastic or Mild, Governor's Tax Bill Faces Hot Battle

GIGANTIC FLOOD IMPERILS THREE STATES

BLAINE BETWEEN TWO FIRES IN TAX BILL PREPARATION

DAHL AND BILGRIEN IN WAIT FOR SHOT AT NEW MEASURE.

THIRD MOVE SEEN

Hot Battle in Assembly Is Expected Unless Governor's Bill Is Radical.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Madison.—Governor Blaine is working between two fires in the preparation of a tax measure that will satisfy the various elements in the legislature, and at the same time make changes in the existing income tax legislation that will not unduly burden industry. Whether he can successfully develop such a measure will remain a matter of doubt until the terms of the bill are announced next week.

On one side of the legislature, Speaker John L. Dahl stands as the leader of a group which has announced its opposition to any tax plan of the governor that does not provide for complete repeal of the personal property tax offset to the income tax.

Over in the senate, Senator Herman Bilgrien has announced that he is ready to introduce when the governor's bill comes before the upper house, if it contains the personal property offset repeal, and other drastic provisions.

Dahl to Push Fight. Defeated in his first encounter with Governor Blaine, the assembly speaker is prepared to push his fight against the governor within the Pro-

Chevrolet Output Reaches 100 a Day

Daily production at the Chevrolet plant in Janesville has reached the 100 mark this week with prospects of 150 cars a day next week. The first Fisher Body company job was completed and delivered to the Chevrolet, Friday afternoon. Both plants are getting into high production.

Material supplies are coming more regularly and as a result there has been a steady stream of cars coming off the assembly lines at the Chevrolet.

The open models are all assembled in the Chevrolet plant, with closed jobs started in the Fisher plant.

First Fisher Body Blocked highways have resulted in many dealers in the northwestern territory purchasing cars and storing them in Janesville until such time as "driveways" are possible.

Construction work inside the Fisher plant has been about completed and preparations made for the starting of body assembly. The bodies made up here are being shipped in parts, to be assembled, painted and sent through the ovens and (Continued on Page 3.)

A number of telephone calls have come to the Gazette from the rural sections where mail was not delivered for several days, owing to impassable roads, asking if the essay and story contest could not be held open for a few days longer. The Gazette will do this and fix next Tuesday as the final day for the contest essays. However, some of the tickets will be given out Monday for the first performance of "A Front Page Story" and the film of the Gazette, "Making a Great Newspaper."

You will want to see the Gazette in the making and the screen comedy-drama of "A Front Page Story." The editor and the mayor are at outs and the picture tells the story of the end of the feud.

GREEN COUNTY PLANS TO PAVE HIGHWAY NO. 20

Green county will start this year to fulfill its promise to pave Highway No. 20 from the Rock county line, and will let the contract within the near future. It has been announced by Highway Commissioner Charles J. Smith, Monroe.

Some reworking will be necessary on account of the dangerous curve in the road east of Broadhead at the McNair farm. Four miles of concrete extending from the Rock-Green county line to the Clarence Bridge will be paved this year. Work will be done by contract, despite some consideration having been given to doing it with day labor.

Digs will also be secured for a two mile stretch of nine foot concrete on the county trunk line between New Glarus and Mount Vernon, and for two and one-half miles of rock surfacing on the Monticello-Army county trunk.

SENATOR NEAR DEATH, BELIEF

WEAVE TIGHT EVIDENCE NET IN MAGNUSON BOMB MURDER CASE

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Wisconsin Rapids.—A chain of circumstantial evidence, believed to be equalled only by the famous Molineux case of New York, was set forth at Saturday's session of circuit court hearing the celebrated "vile bomb" case, which resulted in the death of Mrs. James R. Chapman and the arrest of John Magnuson, farmer charged with its manufacture and mailing.

Sparing no effort to tighten the net around the defendant, the state outdid itself by calling in Albert S. Osborn, father of Magnuson, a resident of New York, and Prof. J. H. Stromberg, connected with the Swedish language department of the University of Minnesota. Both witnesses testified to the fact that Magnuson had been in the state, and took the defense by surprise.

Hokis Writing the Same Osborn was first on the stand. He cited 14 similarities on the original wrapper of the bomb and the Swedish writings, and printings of Magnuson. After a lengthy questioning he declared that "in my estimation the writings on the original and the submitted copy of the defendant are the same."

Professor Stromberg then was called, revealing characteristics in the spelling and punctuation of the Swedish nationality.

Magnuson, according to his story, was born and reared in Sweden. Questioning by the state centered on the spelling of the town "Marshallfield," which was written as "Marshall" on the wrapper of the bomb. Stromberg testified that "uneducated Swedes" always spelled the word "field" as "fild" and also spelled the word "Marshall" as "Mars," leaving off the letter "h."

Shows Language Trick Combining his testimony, the Minnesota professor then declared the word "Marshallfield" would be spelled by a Swedish citizen as "Marshallfield." This piece of evidence, declared by the state attorneys to be the finest piece of work ever developed in a court room. According to the state's claims it cuts off Magnuson's only avenue of escape.

The prosecution then called John P. Tyrell, handwriting expert of the original bomb wrapper was similar to Magnuson's, and that the handwriting of Magnuson was similar to the original and copy. After hearing testimony similar to Tyrell's, the court was adjourned for the week of the trial.

POST-OFFICE HERE MAY BE REMODELED

Government Architect Investigates Plan of Using Second Floor.

Action to have the second floor of the postoffice remodeled and used for carriers and the handling of mail, has been started with the presence at the local office, Friday, of Mr. A. A. Tardiff, Chicago, government architect. He inspected the local building, paying special attention to the possibility of installing an elevator and remodeling the second floor so that it could be used to relieve some of the congestion of the first floor and basement, which has been so bad in the past year, causing delay and inconvenience in handling the mails.

Mr. Tardiff's report will be made to the main government architect of the treasury department at Washington, and authority to do this, if it is given, will come from this department.

Although the local office was unsuccessful in securing an appropriation for new extension, money for the proposed work of remodeling the second floor can come out of a fund for preservation and alterations which will be available July 1, it is explained.

Nine Dry Bills Heard March 29

Madison.—The senate committee schedule along with the other measures.

A memorial to congress by Czerwinski, asking return of light wines and beer is another wet proposal to receive consideration. A resolution by Senator Burke, asking congress to repeal the prohibition amendment, is on the calendar with a resolution by Assemblyman Peterson, already adopted by the lower house, asking congress to amend the prohibition enforcement statute to permit a higher alcoholic content.

From this jumble of measures, the state affairs committee is expected to produce a bill of its own, calling for a referendum on the question of prohibition at the April, 1924, election.

With the senate committee controlled by the drys, providing a full membership is present, it is believed that all of the wet bills will come out recommended for indefinite postponement.

SCREEN AND STAGE

PROGRAMS AT JANESVILLE THEATERS WEEK OF MARCH 25-31.

APOLLO.
Monday through Thursday—"Nobody's Money," Jack Holt and Wanda Hawley; and Lloyd Hamilton comedy.
Friday—"The Referee" and vaudeville.
Saturday and Sunday—Vaudeville and comedies.

MYERS.
Monday through Wednesday—"A Front Page Story," and views of the Janesville Daily Gazette.
Thursday—"Lightnin'" with Thomas Jefferson and other notables.
Friday through Sunday—"Shadows of Conscience," Russell Simpson; and vaudeville.

MAJESTIC.
Monday—"The World's Champion," Wallace Reid.
Tuesday—"The City of Silent Men," Thomas Meighan.
Wednesday—"All's Fair in Love," with an all-star cast.
Thursday and Friday—"The Trap," with Lon Chaney.
Saturday—"The Long Chance," J. Waltham.

While interest usually attaches itself more to the church during Holy week than to the theaters, Janesville shows no signs of offering many excellent attractions for the approaching week, as can be seen by the above program. The Apollo is showing the first of its new Paramount pictures, the lively "The Third Alarm," is considered one of the best thrillers produced in recent months, and the Myers has the views of the Gazette with its "A Front Page Story," and for Thursday that supreme attraction of the winter, "Lightnin'."

Conway Tearle plays the leading part in "The Referee," the picture scheduled for the Apollo theater for Friday only. The story is of the middleweight champion who enters the business world when an accident prohibits him from further fighting. As a referee later, he gets into a fight that forms the thrilling climax.

Thomas Jefferson as Bill Jones in "Lightnin'" at the Myers Thursday.

AT THE APOLLO.
Jack Holt is seen as a comedian in this first Paramount picture to play at the Apollo in several years—"Nobody's Money." This star has had a steady increase in popularity and through a selection of excellent vehicles has become one of Paramount's best-loved stars.
Jack Holt has been proclaimed the most versatile star in motion pictures. Not only has such an honor been accorded Mr. Holt, but he has won it honestly. In his latest six pictures, the Paramount star has played what is believed to be the widest variation of characters ever enacted by one screen actor.
In "The Call of the North," Holt was a fur trapper. In "North of the each week with excellent attractions, will be seen "The Leopardess," with Alice Brady, and "The Testing Block," with William S. Hart. The Alice Brady picture shows this admired actress in a South Seas picture, with a different angle to the plot than is generally seen. There are many thrilling scenes, and costumes, scenery and acting will all be good.

The old days of the gold rush fever in the Sierras are brought to life in the Hart production, and this actor, famous for his tales of western bad men, here has a part that is said to be superior to anything he has yet done. He plays the part of the mountain bandit, returned by a girl violinist, and who, in the most exciting scenes of the picture, is forced to face his own hand. Eva Novak has the supporting part.

There was not a point lacking. Rhythms, tempi, pianissimi, all were given with a precision and smoothness that would do credit to a symphony orchestra (which indeed it strongly resembled at times) and all memorized. Attack, release, shading, all were not only musically, but infused with a spirit of devotion which was thrillingly beautiful.

follows in an exciting climax, and the young man finds his romance with the editor's daughter. These two parts are played well by Edward Horton and Edith Roberts.

The views of the Gazette will be interesting for the people seen, and for the natural interest that attaches itself to any newspaper, especially to the one in your own home town. By various subtitles the workings of the many machines are explained, and many who have but a hazy idea as to the making of a modern up-to-date newspaper will doubtless be enlightened.

Mail orders for seats for "Lightnin'," which is to play at the Myers for one night only, Thursday, have exceeded all expectations, and by sending tickets to those who sent in money and requests, in the order received, many who would otherwise be forced to stand in line are accommodated. $25 REWARD FOR FINDER OF BODY

Sister in Edgerton Makes Offer for Recovery of Drowned Man.

Announcement that a reward of $25 will be given to the person recovering the body of Carl Anderson, Edgerton, who was drowned in Rock River, Wednesday, was made by Chief of Police Charles Newman, Saturday, following conversation with Chief Ben Springer, Edgerton. In view of the $1,500 savings account left by Anderson, Chief Newman suggested the idea to the Edgerton police chief and he secured approval of the plan from Mrs. A. Thompson, Edgerton, sister of the missing man.

Although most of the ice has gone out of the river between the Fourth avenue dam and the railroad bridge, police are hesitant about starting to drag because of the current and height of the river.

Expressing his belief that the body of the man who jumped from the Fourth avenue high railroad bridge has not gone over to the south side dam, A. W. Woodworth, chief engineer of the Janesville Electric company, declared Saturday morning it might be recovered if the stream were dragged.

"I think the body will be found right where he went in," said Mr. Woodworth.

Probably in Sink Hole. "There is a sink hole where the man jumped and there is no current except an eddy on top. There is a fill at that spot and the back wall of the dam should have kept the body from going over. The water is going over only on top of the dam and is still at the spot where the man entered. A lot of work could be done in three or four hours if dragging were started."

Milton Approves Plans for Sewers

(By Special Correspondent.) Milton—Final approval of sewer plans for the village of Milton was given by the board of trustees, Friday, following an advertised hearing on the plans at which no one appeared to enter a protest. The plans were drawn up by W. G. Kirschefer, Madison.

A survey of the village is now being made to determine the front footages in order that assessments may be spread. A hearing on the assessments will be held later. The $50,000 issue of water works bonds of Milton has been sold to the Second Ward Securities bank, Milwaukee.

LARGE GROUP AT WEEKLY STORY HOUR

One of the largest groups in several weeks attended story hour at the Janesville public library Saturday morning, and heard the three stories told by Miss Jessie George. They were "The Three Silents," "Little Catkin," and "The Well of the World's End." These story hours, which have continued in popularity all through the winter months, will be continued until warm spring weather arrives.

Y. M. PLANS HIKES DURING VACATION

Special activities of the Y. M. C. A. next week vacation in the public schools, will take the form of gymnasium classes and hikes. C. E. Clough, head of the boys' department is arranging for a special period for every day for the Junior A and B groups, and if the weather is good, some hikes, the first of the season, will be enjoyed.

60,000 VISITORS IS Y. W. RECORD FOR YEAR 1922

Women and girls of Janesville used the local Y. W. C. A. rooms informally 58,732 times during 1922. These statistics are published Saturday in the second number of the "Y. W. Owl," official publication of the "Y. W."

Other figures show 24 new members added since Feb. 1. The figures for 1922 show almost double use of the "Y. W." than in 1921. There were 1,244 activities in the rooms, not including sports or girls' reserves; there were 722 athletic meetings with total attendance of 6,921; 468 gymnasium classes were held with 6,552 taking part; the Girl Reserves held 280 meetings with attendance of 6,800; there were 136 committee meetings, attendance of 2,940; 50 girls were physically examined in two months.

Last summer, the "Y. W." had 150 girls in camp. Recreational activities in the community outside of the "Y. W." organization were 153. Twenty-five outside organizations used the "Y. W." rooms.

Telephone calls totaled 25,462. A total of 3,907 letters were written.

WALWORTH COUNTY

County Seat Newton. Mrs. GRACE HARRINGTON. Editor.

Elkhorn. Thursday was the first day the Elkhorn church made its regular trips and the Grange got the rail in from Troy Center, since last Saturday. A few fine days and activities will open up to normal. The Elkhorn church will have a collection of boxes to Chicago, Wednesday, Thursday's market and from there went to Watertown to spend the weekend, March 23 and 24.

A large class of young people will be confirmed at the First Lutheran church on Sunday.

L. J. Jernigan spent several days this week in the Elkhorn and vicinity. An orchard, spraying ring, of 12 members was organized with the following officers: Ralph Peters, president; Martin Peters, secretary; and Mrs. Peters, treasurer.

Persons. Miss Katherine Chase, of the Deane, Ill. school, came Saturday and spent a week's vacation with her mother, Mrs. Howard Mills. She will return to spend Easter with Mrs. Emma Sprague in Chicago.

Mrs. G. L. G. Duette and son, Robert, Chicago, are visiting Mrs. W. H. Hubbard and family.

Mrs. Marion Babcock returned to her home in Madison Friday night after visiting Mrs. Flora Gibbs and attending the funeral of Martin Gibbs Wednesday.

Mrs. Alice Chatterton left Friday night for St. Louis, Mo., where she was called by the illness of her son, Frederick.

Wayne James, who has been quarantined in the past three weeks with scarlet fever, has returned to school.

Wayne Bourbeau, Bambo, spent Thursday at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Bourbeau.

Dr. Willard of the Congregational church, Beloit, will speak at the Men's club supper to be held in the hall of the church, Wednesday, March 28, at 7:30 p. m.

GAZETTE PLATFORM FOR 1923.

- Election of a council of seven to back up the city manager in the form of government adopted by Janesville and to insure its efficient operation.
- Continued effort to secure for Janesville a modern city hall so that this city may take care of many conventions as well as the traveling public.
- Enlarge the Rock River park in every way a delightful playground for the people of the city. Establishment of free baseball grounds, tennis courts and outdoor sports, bathing beaches and all the necessary arrangements for making the park a popular recreation place for Janesville.
- Clean up the bootleggers and blind tigers and enforce the laws.
- Establishment of a real estate mortgage company to make the building of homes more easily accomplished.
- Add a room in the post office by building an annex.
- Arranging a road building program so that the farmer and taxpayer will be the greatest beneficiary.
- Traffic regulations that will reduce reckless driving and the number of deaths from auto accidents.

A Summer Full of Activity.

There is a promise of a summer filled with activity. Janesville has never had a park before and now that we have the ground it will be up to the citizens to make it the beauty spot and attraction which Nature has so accommodatingly suggested. The city will not have the money to put the park in shape this year—that will be a work of years and no park ever ought to be completely finished. There ought, like housework, to be something to do always.

Our active women's clubs, the organizations of men, boys and girls from the schools, may all help make the park worth while. For instance, trees might be planted until we had here a representative of all the species of trees grown in Wisconsin, as well as those indigenous to the North Temperate zone. Our schools can well afford to spend some time and labor on such a botanical collection. Riverside park can be and ought to be made much of. If the street car company wishes to add to its patronage it can well afford also to make a loop into the park carrying passengers direct to the entrance or beyond.

Of course many of these details are to be worked out by the city manager who, if he has the right training, will be appreciative of the advantages to any city of a recreation place. Increase in the number of families in the city, bound to come with the added production of the automobile plant, will make a park more of a necessity than ever. It is one of Janesville's finest assets and therefore deserving of thought, labor and attention.

Our tourist camp is also a matter which needs some attention early enough to put it in shape for the service for which it is designed. Other activities planned are a Fourth of July celebration of unusual merit with attention to the rich field of history which the Rock river valley presents. In spite of the snow and wet and discomfort of March there is to be a summertime and its call is to action.

About the most trusting individual in the world is the man who sheds his heavy underwear in March.

The Santiago Conference.

In a few days there will convene at Santiago, Chile, the Fifth Pan-American conference. It is believed that this meeting of delegates from all the American nations will have far reaching effects in a greater appreciation of sympathetic problems and the emphasized need for unity. On the agenda of the conference are topics which will, it is hoped, give a clearer understanding of the Monroe doctrine as now operating. One other question is of securing a diminution of the consumption of alcoholic beverages; another is the larger development of agriculture. Those international questions are stated in the agenda as follows:

Consideration of measures tending toward closer association of the republics of the American Continent, with a view to promoting common interests.

Questions arising out of an encroachment by a non-American power on the rights of an American nation.

In its dealings with foreign nations the United States has far more reason to seek closer unity with South and Latin America than with European political divisions. We have a greater common interest, first, in that we are not consumed with age-old jealousies and racial prejudices which have made so great an impression on all attempts to secure harmonious relations in Europe. Both the United States and the other members to the conference are of the same general faith in republican government. Most of the South and Central American nations are basicaly patterned after the United States. We have had commercial differences and failed often to arrive at an understanding because of European intrigue instigated and carried on by trade rivals from Germany and Britain, but as a rule our diplomatic friendships have been continuous.

The success of the conference of the Central American states called by Secretary Hughes has been a marked step toward the same pleasing climax for the Santiago meeting. In the Central American conference a great advance was made entirely outside mere political considerations. The five republics have adopted a free trade among themselves for the exchange of products, provided for the establishment of agricultural experiment stations and animal industries and a reciprocal exchange of students. With new provisions for extradition and agreement to limit armaments reducing the cost of armies, the taxpayers will

EXIT THE BEGGAR

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Washington.—Professional beggars in Washington are packing their grips and departing by the hundreds for more fertile fields.

The white tickets of the Gospel Mission have worked the trick and the nation's capital is no longer the heaven of the professional purveyor.

The tickets, tiny strips of cardboard good for a night's lodging and three square meals at the mission's local office, have been distributed in thousands to business and professional men of the city. Approached by a beggar with the usual plea for the price of a cup of coffee, mister, or a bed for the night, boss, the possessor of the tickets hands out one in lieu of the desired coin.

If the beggar is in serious need of either food or lodging he cashes the ticket at the mission and all is well. If, on the other hand, he is a member of the country's vast army of professional beggars, he throws the ticket in the gutter the second the donor's back is turned and goes away cursing.

The Gospel Mission has collected statistics proving that there are over half a million professional beggars at work over the Mississippi, men who must be livelihood by preying on the sympathy of the casual passer-by. Practically every "touch," in the parlance of the trade, is successful. The victim may doubt in his own mind the sincerity of the plea but his natural sympathies and a fear that the request might, after all, be genuine prevents his refusing the quarter or dime asked.

"A professional purveyor," says the Rev. G. W. Cory, superintendent of the Washington branch of the mission and author of the white ticket scheme, "will bamboozle the public out of from $5 to $10 a day without any trouble or particular effort. He may even make from three to four times that much. The money is then spent on bad whiskey or dope and at the close of the day he turns to some charitable institution for the necessary meal and bed."

The white tickets were first used by Mr. Cory in Wheeling, W. Va., at the time of the big coal strike in 1921. With 20,000 men thrown out of work the professional beggar, who had probably never done a day's real work in his life, found the city particularly easy. Mr. Cory, then in charge of the Wheeling branch of the Gospel Mission, devised the white ticket scheme as a means of keeping track of those really in need and of clearing the city of unworthy mendicants.

The system, according to the police of Wheeling who had been vainly striving to settle the problem, worked like a charm and in less than a month the vast army of panhandlers silently departed.

Washington, since the days of the war, has been a favorite hunting ground for professional beggars. Give a man a worn army coat and his career is made. All the assets he will then need to make a comfortable living in Washington without having to work is a pitiful tale of injuries received "over there" and a hard-earned employer who had given the old before-the-war job to some "dirty slacker," or even less than that "Gimme a quarter, boss, for a cup inocha and a sandwich," brings the desired results.

The mission does not ask that such requests be refused, but that the tickets be substituted for the actual money. If you give a worthy man a quarter, they argue, you help him; but when you give him one of the mission's white tickets you help him even more, for no where else can he get so much for his quarter as at the mission relief office. And when the quarter goes to the unworthy beggar you not only contribute toward his career of idleness, but you actually take that much help away from the one who may need it.

The mission, once the white ticket is turned in, is not content merely with providing the unfortunate with something to eat and a place to sleep. If he wants work they have an arrangement with a local employment agency.

The white tickets were first introduced in Washington on January first. Two hundred thousand of them were mailed to a selected list of professional and business men with the request that they give their cooperation to the mission's plan of ridding the city of the pestiferous horde of professional down-and-outers infesting the city.

Results were almost immediate. From an average of 30 applications for help at the mission's office, the daily average leaped to 150. And practically all of them introduced themselves with white tickets. How many of these same little strips of cardboard, given to professionals, have been consigned to the gutter the mission is not sure. It has, however, been issued and the mission has given notice through the medium of local newspapers that anyone wanting a handful of the tickets can secure them at the mission office.

There is no charge for the tickets. Anyone can secure them on request. And the mission is making every attempt to provide every man or woman in the city with a ticket. A beggar with a strip or two of the tickets, the one placed in a conspicuous place on newstands in hotels for strangers visiting Washington.

From the first the scheme has received the unqualified endorsement of the national capital and the tickets have been received enthusiastically. President Harding, on the receipt of a dozen strips, wrote Mr. Cory that the scheme sounded extremely practical and that he waited the mission all success in its campaign to make Washington a barren field for the professional purveyor.

On Capitol Hill the senate and house of representative members were heartily in favor of the plan. So popular have the white tickets become with certain congressmen that there is likelihood of the plan's being introduced all over the country.

In a letter to Mr. Cory Representative John E. Raker of California expressed an opinion that the plan "thoroughly applied all over the United States would practically eliminate unworthy mendicants."

There is a possibility also of Mr. Cory's white tickets traveling not only to other cities but abroad. The tickets were sent by the mission to the various embassies and foreign legations here and were received with enthusiasm. The diplomatic corps has been always the prey of the professional beggar, who feels certain a foreigner will not turn down his plea for help.

have a lessened burden and the states will not be disturbed by a criminal population seeking asylum therein from this country.

These are all steps progressively for a better understanding of neighbors, and profitable, too, both to the republics to the south of us in opening new trade channels and to us in reciprocal measure.

If a man had said a year ago we would be turning out 75 automobiles a day from a plant in Janesville, he would have been hurried to the local hogswallow more rapidly than a bootlegger.

It is announced that a temperature of 310 degrees below zero has been found by a scientific professor. Have, Mont, and Deluth are naturally peeved over having their records shattered.

JUST FOLKS

THE DICTIONARY.

The dictionary's full of words
Which mean to 2.
For any man to choose and use
In prose or melody.

The stories of the world are there,
The songs which men sing,
The books of ages yet unborn,
And many a tender thing.

The jest lies sleeping on a page,
The sorrow on a line,
The poem waits an artist's call,
An artist's lovely choice.

It is the color box of speech,
With all its various hues,
Wherein are found the little tubes
That all who paint must use.

And one man splashes red and blue
And all his canvas seems,
While one with deft and subtle touch
Can give the world his dreams.

So stands the dictionary there,
The words piled, ready on row,
Waiting the teller of the tale
To set them all aglow.

ON THE SPUR OF THE MOMENT

By ROY K. MOUTON.

To be able to borrow money is a gift, but lending it is often even more so.

Now that Trotsky is organizing into the nobility he may be able to organize an imperialistic branch of the commune.

We'd just like to sit down with King George now and spend the evening listening to his story of the cute tricks of the new baby. There are times when it isn't such a dismal thing to be a monarch and we must admit that dear old George has earned a little happiness.

Due notice is served on criminals and other night prowlers to the effect that the New York police are now engaged in a plat's shooting contest to determine on the force. But it is difficult to see how he is going to patrol the whole city after they find him.

Who's Who Today

ANDRE MAGINOT.

Andre Maginot, French minister of war and the man directing the operations of the French in the Ruhr, is remembered by thousands of French world war veterans as a politician, a man of the ranks, who all but lost his life for his country in the world war.

Maginot was a member of the chamber of deputies when the war broke out and there, then, even before he was named minister of military service, disdaining to use this right he enlisted. He even refused to use his position of prominence or knowledge of military matters to gain him a commission. He went to the front as a private.

His promotion to the rank of sergeant came as a result of his soldierly conduct in leading small raiding parties. It was during one of these parties in which Maginot all but lost his life. He was shot in both legs.

Maginot's powerful physique makes him a commanding figure. He stands well over six feet and of husky build. He has a "using personality."

His first diplomatic work was under M. Jonard, then governor general of Algeria. In 1910 Maginot was elected general council for Reims, in the Meuse and entered the chamber of deputies that same year. In 1912 he became under secretary.

After recovering from his wounds received in the war he returned to the chamber of deputies and was a dominant figure. In 1917 he became minister of colonies under Premier Briand and when Briand was premier Maginot was asked to assume the office he now holds.

He's one of France's most prominent leaders.

OPINIONS OF OTHERS

Prohibition's Lesson to Pacifists.

The pacifist might well reflect on prohibition. For well over seventy years the prohibitionists labored to persuade us to give up drinking liquor. That was the negative period of their campaign.

"Don't do this—give it up. Did they persuade the individual man and woman to give it up? They did not. (If there is any lingering doubt about this the bootlegger and the home-brewer will dispel it.) What the prohibitionists did do (and this alone brought the prohibition to pass) was to launch a positive campaign which in the end prevented the public and open manufacture and importation of liquor. No one doubts that their negative campaign, their educational campaign on the evils of liquor, was useful for a time. But it did not carry the day. It only gave them a position from which they could launch their positive, aggressive campaign for legal prohibition and enforcement of it. That alone brought them success, such as it is.

Now, the modern pacifist is much better off than the prohibitionist ever was. The world today is far more persuaded of the evils of war than this is the case of the evils of drink. The pacifist already holds a position, a moral position, from which he can make a positive drive. And yet, taken as a whole, he battles himself with his negative campaign and his negative campaign, his educational campaign, commit themselves to any positive plan of attack. LOOKING BACKWARD

FORTY YEARS AGO

March 24, 1883.—Miss Jeffrey-Lewis appears at the Myers theater Monday night in the famous play "The Belle Ruse" which took place at St. Patrick's church rang this morning for Holy Saturday and people taking it to be the fire bell, got the department out, started the bell there ringing and made excitement general throughout the city. Damage to the department about $25.

THIRTY YEARS AGO

March 24, 1893.—The former manager of the Wisconsin Telephone company in Oshkosh has written to several prominent people with a proposition for a new telephone exchange which does away with central and makes it possible for any subscriber to connect himself with any other. The United States presidents will be housed at the hotel here until June, when they will be tried at Madison.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

March 24, 1903.—The members of the committee of the Janesville Public Library to purchase furniture for a new library building are this morning looking over some chairs for the new Carnegie building. A blizzard came last night surprising those who did not believe the weather forecasts and were looking for balmy, spring weather.

TEN YEARS AGO

March 24, 1913.—While switchmen on the fifteen roads running in and out of Chicago are threatening to strike, local men do not expect any trouble. As a result of last night's damaging storm, basements are flooded, whose water troubles are not running and trains are late and the river is rising so rapidly as to cause some worry.

FEAR DESTROYED.

Fear thou not; for I am with thee; be not dismayed; for I am thy God; I will strengthen thee; yea, I will help thee; yea, I will uphold thee with the right hand of my righteousness.—Isaiah 41:10.

LINIMENT

Although I usually say what I think and think what I say, I hadn't the courage to omit liniment from this general. When using it, be careful to keep it out of the eyes. Another popular formula for solidified liniment is either an improvement or an aggravation of analgesic liniment. It contains also some emulsion to give it pep and some belladonna. This tends to allay spasm or cramp. This is about the best formula I know: Menthol 2 grains Oil of wintergreen 20 drops Extract of belladonna 20 grains Lanolin 6 drams Petroleum enough to make a salve. Build extract of capsaicum 1 ounce Keep in a collapsible tube.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.
Can for Extraction.
Would you advise the use of gas extract for the removal of a tooth? Has it any after effects? (Mrs. J. M.)
Answer:—No. It is a very safe and effective method of extraction. It is often administered (by inhalation) with oxygen as a comparative anesthetic. It is used in dental operations. It would scarcely be used for the operation of filling teeth.

Kindly tell me whether the use of salutarin is injurious. I have heart trouble, the cold, indigestible gas, which salutarin seems to relieve; about a quarter of a teaspoonful perhaps twice a day in water. (M. M. L.)
Answer:—It will do no harm. Salutarin (bicarbonate of soda) gives off considerable gas (carbonic acid gas) when it is dissolved in water. It is naturally present in the stomach.

Kindly tell me whether "Arm & Hammer" baking soda is injurious? I use it frequently for indigestion and it is a great aid. (Mrs. J. M. L.)
Answer:—It is salutarin, sodium bicarbonate. See the foregoing answer.

No Anti-Tobacco Traces.
Kindly send your anti-tobacco literature. Dr. D. Dr. says certain foods promote the growth of the hair. What are those foods? (J. L.)
Answer:—(1) I have no anti-tobacco literature. (2) I don't know of any such foods. Senator Copeland has done you a great deal of good. I am a Copelander. See the foregoing answer.

Proper Breathing.
To what degree is perfect breathing dependent on breathing properly? (J. L. F.)
Answer:—Not at all. In my judgment, the best way to breathe is to breathe naturally. I think proper breathing is a natural result and accomplishment. It is not a matter of degree, of course, but one must be consistently wiser to what extent perfect health depends on proper circulation.

Q. Why is there a variation in the direction of a magnetic needle points and does it change with the lapse of time? R. E. L.
A. About all that can be said is that the earth acts like a great magnet. It is known that local irregularities are produced by magnetic material in the earth. The earth and the more extended regularities have no doubt due in part to a similar cause. The change in the compass reading with the lapse of time is different in different parts of the earth. In the vicinity of the District of Columbia the north end of the compass needle now points about 1 degree off north to the west. It did in 1900 and the compass bearing of a line run by the compass in 1900 would now be different by the amount.

Q. How thick is a silver dollar?
N. S. T.
A. The office of the director of the mint says that the thickness of a silver dollar is .114 of an inch.

Q. How many electric railways are there in the United States?
C. W. W.
A. At the close of 1921 there were 316 electric railways, operating over 47,555 miles track, with gross earnings of $708,825,692.

Q. How old is Tyrore Power?
M. E. L.
A. Tyrore Power was born in London, England, in 1869. He is the grandson of an actor of the same name.

Q. What are bad lands and where are they to be found?
A. The term "bad lands" is applied to certain barren regions in various parts of the United States. They comprise unconsolidated rocks that have been greatly eroded. The rain falls only during short periods and then the storm waters wear away the rock which is unprotected by any vegetation. The bad lands of Texas are located on the northwestern part of the state.

Q. Why do heart shaped shadows appear in cups and bowls? L. P.
A. The heart shaped shadows found in the bottom of cups and other shallow vessels are due to the blending of shadows cast by concentric rings of light falling on the surface of light. These shadows overlap in the bottom of the cup, thereby producing the heart-shaped form.

Begin on Your Garden Now

The true gardener believes in preparedness. With the arrival of the first warm spring days, he plunges into his annual plunge into garden work.

March is actually the month of garden preparation. The home gardener begins his study of seed catalogues, plans the arrangement of his garden, decides on his crops, and places his order for seeds and garden implements.

One of the greatest possible helps in gardening is the Government Garden Book which this Bureau has prepared for distribution. It is the official illustrated guide published by the Department of Agriculture.

A plot of ground, even if it's only a city back yard, plus this book and a little water, means fresh vegetables all summer long. Start the spring right by sending for the Garden Book today. Enclose two cents in stamp for return postage.

I enclose herewith two cents in stamps for return postage on a free copy of "The Garden Book."

JIC-JITSU FOR GIRLS.
Honolulu, T. H.—The Japanese high school here has opened a class in jic-jitsu for girls. This step was taken because of the many recent reports of assaults upon women and girls in Honolulu, and from the results that are being obtained from the instruction in the Nipponese art of personal protection. It believed that the next person who attempts to molest a Japanese girl will meet with a surprise.

RELICS OF THE PAST

Do you remember the old high-wheel bicycle, the horse-car, the quaint styles of dress and other relics which were in common use within the memory of most of us? Who would want them back? Civilization in our day is going forward with smashing strides. We are proud to know that in our business we have kept fully abreast of progress and have done our share to eliminate many of the discomforts of bygone years.

The New vs. The Old

If you were to stand one of the new gas ranges up alongside of one of the earlier makes you would be surprised to note no point of similarity between them. In few of manufacture have greater strides been made than in the design and construction of gas ranges. The new models are marvels of convenience, cleanliness and economy.

The preference of the housewife of today is for a gas range finished throughout in white or gray enamel. Another feature which is making a striking appeal is the regulated cooking device which enables you to place the meat in the oven, set a dial, and have the cooking completed without any further attention on your part. Come in and inspect the new gas range.

The Wall Flower

By MARION RUBINCAM

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.
 Pandora Nicholson is so painfully shy that when she meets new people she can think of nothing to say to them, and never knows what to do with her hands or feet. She lives with her mother and her Aunt Maude, her uncle and their very popular daughter, Gladys, all of whom she frequently finds herself hopelessly stupid and queer. She has only one friend, Alphonse, who is devoted to her. When Gladys, who has everything, suddenly marries Morton, Pandora finds herself heartbroken.

A QUEER LETTER
 In spite of Pandora's good resolutions about not wanting a new home, nor even as she went so far as to say in her first enthusiasm—wanting to change anything in the apartment, she found herself weakening after a ten days or so.

First of all, there was the matter of the bedrooms. The apartment was so arranged that most of it was studio. This room was the height of the two floors, after the usual manner of artists' flats. It was very large with a great deal of room for the studio, and two low ones at the side, big enough to swallow up the easel and model stand, the grand piano and divans, and so arranged that many people could stand when the furniture was pushed back to the walls.

The long hall that ran up to it, turned so it was possible, by shutting doors, to change the room into a study, or a bedroom, or a living room, the rest of the flat an ideal arrangement for undisturbed work. It opened onto the hall, and the dining room, to reach which one crossed the foot of the stairs. The dining room was big, but half the height of the studio, and with its tapestries and oak, Pandora thought it perfect. Pantry, kitchen, and a servant's room completed the floor.

But up the short stairs was a little room or rather balcony, possessing its own bright window, but opening to the studio. Pandora wanted a separate little living room, and did not want to bother George at work, she had sent home one day two huge curtains of golden brocade, which found well with the rich browns of the studio, which were added to dandelion sound and which, when hung at the balcony, made it a really separate room.

"I told you so," said George, who had prophesied changes. Pandora explained her reasons. "Before, you could hear everything from other rooms, which is bad for you when you work and bad for your sitters. It was all right before. You hadn't a wife and adopted child about to make a lot of noise."

"Besides," and George laughed at this feminine reason. "I bought this material for half price from some people Gloria deals with. It was the end of a piece, and then I had it made up through her shop, so she'll get a commission on it." After that, she gave her attention to the bedrooms, which always worried her. George had done his with a simplicity that may have been Spartan, but that looked bare to his young wife. His aunt, though she did herself very well in the way of clothes, had nothing feminine about her surroundings. A wooden bed, handsome but plain as she could find, straight chairs, a stumpy sized mirror, one armchair by a table and shelves for her books—the third room was filled with odds and ends and Frankie had it now. Pandora spent days among the antique stores, seeking inspiration and combining an idea here with another idea there, a hint from a magazine, something suggested by the pattern of a chair—then, boldly swept out the lot and put in the dark mahogany and quaint cretonnes she loved so, carved pedestal tables, a desk and graceful lines and the inevitable and valuable "secret" drawer. "Up-top" tables to hold old silver candlesticks—and a rug, she decided, was the oval braided rug that she felt necessary to complete the room.

"Quaintness" one paid well for in the city. Such rugs were priced so high she refused to purchase. At home, they still make them. I helped Aunt Maude often when I was a child, she told her husband. I think I'll write there and ask Aunt Maude to mail me some, or get some for me in the village. So she wrote—she had written from London, simply announcing her intended marriage and adding a practical description of what George looked like and what his profession was. It was in this way that she picked up her almost broken connection with her family. For Aunt Maude answered as volubly as she talked.

"I got three rugs the size you wanted, though one has to be added to make it large enough," the letter said. "You'll have to pay for the other two. Everything has gone up so since I bought. Seems to me the cheapest thing would be for you to make them, but at Gladys says, it takes years to collect rug strips enough and I suppose you've got everything new in your house." Pandora smiled a little at this, remembering her long hunt for properly aged furniture and the trouble she had had from Gloria to make her distinguish real old from fake old.

"Anyway, they would have been $10 apiece, but I told them they were for you and as you'd married an artist you probably couldn't afford that much, so I got $5 off. And then we decided that as we had given you a present and you were our niece, we'd give you one of these. I don't suppose you'll be able to afford going away next summer, as you're furnishing a house, so we thought you could both come here to the farm. It would be a change for you anyway—and you can work for me, so you needn't pay board and probably George would make himself useful too—we always need extra hands. Gladys says he can paint the barn as he's a painter, I told her he wasn't that sort, but she said she supposed he could do plain painting anyway."

Pan in disgust, suddenly threw the note into the fire.

TODAY'S RECIPES

Swedish Potato Cakes—Two cups cold boiled potatoes, one egg, one teaspoon baking powder, one-half cup milk, one cup flour, salt and pepper. Beat well and drop from spoon on well greased griddle. Cook slowly, browning on both sides.

Rice—Indian Style—One cup rice, one cup soup stock, one cup stewed tomatoes, a little grated onion, salt and pepper. Boil together the tomatoes and soup stock. When at boiling point add the rice and cook until rice is done. Remove from the fire and add a good sized lump of butter and let steam for 20 minutes. Don't stir very much after the rice is put in.

Ment Leaf—One and one-half pounds of beef ground with one-quarter pound of salt pork, one-half cup bread crumbs, one egg, a small onion or onion juice if liked, salt and pepper to taste. Mix all together thoroughly, form into loaf and bake one hour.

Chocolate Pie—One square bitter chocolate melted, one-half cup sugar, one heaping tablespoon cornstarch, yolks two eggs, one cup milk, pinch salt. Cook and put in baked pie shell. Whip egg white, sweeten and spread on for meringue and brown. Whipped cream may also be used to top this pie.

SUGGESTIONS
 When Baking Fish—When baking fish slip two strips of clean washed muslin under the fish when you lay it in the pan. In this way, by taking hold of each end of the two strips, you can remove the fish after cooking without its breaking.

When Washing Black Stockings—Wash in cool water and add a teaspoonful of vinegar to the last rinsing water. This will keep them a good black.

Greasy Funn and Kettles—Pour a few drops of ammonia into every greasy frying pan or cooking dish after half filling with water.

To Clean Bread Boards—Wooden bread boards should be scrubbed with salt or sand rather than soap, in order to keep in good condition. Sun or set them before the fire until they are entirely dry. A musty bread board will impart a taste to the dough that is not agreeable.

Care of Cut Glass—Cut glass is sensitive to sudden changes of temperature. Do not hold the cut glass bowl that has had ice cream in it under the hot water faucet, or do not take a piece of cut glass from a hot room into a cold room suddenly. Placing a ice touching the sides of a punch bowl will sometimes cause it to crack.

GAZETTE GOOD TIMES CLUB

FOR ALL SCHOOL BOYS AND GIRLS

The Gazette Good Times Club will cooperate with the county superintendent of schools and the county Y. M. C. A. secretary in the promotion of township rural school play days and in the holding of a county play day at the close of the school year. Four townships had play days last year, cash receipts being $1,000. The plan of the club is to assist in the planning and carrying out of the event from J. K. Luecke, county Y. M. C. A. secretary. Mr. Arnet, addressed the rural school section of the county teachers' convention last Saturday and announced that the policy of "first come, first served" will be observed in the matter of giving assistance this year. He suggested that one or two interested teachers may arrange for a township play day and the county Y. M. C. A. secretary will consider play day plans and arrange for the appointment of committees. It is desirable that the general committee have two persons from each school district at the playday is for the whole community and not limited to the school children. Each township will decide on its own play day program, but a suggestive list of township play days is being arranged. The school receiving the highest aggregate number of points will be presented with a suitable trophy provided by the Gazette. The championship school in each township will be eligible to compete at the county play day for a county championship trophy. Full details as to events and rules will be announced soon.

Teachers who desire assistance in the organization of a township play day may communicate with the county superintendent, the county Y. M. C. A. secretary or the Good Times Club editor.

SCHOOL ROOM GYMNASIUMS.
The demonstration of school room gymnastics given by the students of the county training school under the direction of Miss Helen West, Janesville Y. W. C. A. physical director, was appreciated by the teachers in attendance at the rural school convention. The county teachers' convention, which was held at the county Y. M. C. A. building, was a success in every way. An outline of the exercises that were given and a typewritten copy will be furnished free by the Good Times Club editor to any teacher whose school has enrolled in the club.

PHOTOGRAPH DEMONSTRATION.
The photograph demonstration given at the county convention by Miss Stein, Chicago, drew much interest among the eighty rural teachers who were present. Several of the selections on the music memory contest were suggested as suitable for use in connection with picture and literature study. One of these was "Lullaby" from New World Symphony, a description of which was printed in the Good Times Club section a week ago. Miss Stein showed quite clearly how much of beauty and interest may be added to school work by the use of the photograph. In closing she summarized the value of this type of instruction by quoting the following from Franz Liszt, noted composer: "The more children know and enjoy, the fuller and more complete will be for them their life in living."

ON MUSIC MEMORY LIST.
"Old Black Joe," by Stephen Collins Foster, is one of the most beautiful melodies by this composer, and justly ranks as an American folk song. Foster wrote, also, "Old Folks at Home" and "Swanee River." "Cold, Cold Ground," both of which are found on the record recommended to schools on the official contest list. The record also has a companion or community singing and will be well worth having in any school room. All three songs are on the list in the new state manual recommended for memorization by pupils of the common schools of Wisconsin. However, "Old Black Joe" is the only one that will be used in the music memory contest. Stephen Collins Foster was born in Lawrenceville, a suburb of Pittsburgh, Pa., in 1826, and died in 1864. He had a rather limited schooling and "picked up" most of his musical education. At an early age he played the flageolet, fute and piano. His first composition, produced at the age of 17, was a waltz for four guitars. He was only sixteen when his first song was published.

COURT BILL TO BE HEARD, APRIL 5TH

Garey Asks Attorneys' Opinions on Increasing Jurisdiction Here.
Senator A. E. Garey's bill which would cloak the Rock county municipal court of Janesville with practically the same full powers of the Beloit municipal court, will be given hearing by the senate judiciary committee at 2 p. m. April 5.

Senator Garey has sent a copy of the bill and a letter to all Janesville attorneys asking them to write him concerning their feelings regarding the bill.

He states: "Whether this bill receives favorable consideration at the hands of the judiciary committee will depend upon the response of Janesville lawyers. If there is a desire to enlarge the powers of the municipal court as herein provided, this is an opportune time to do it. If there is no favorable sentiment for the change, you should do the Janesville bar the service and me the justice to say so."

The bill would give the Rock county municipal court jurisdiction in court matters up to $20,000 instead of $1,000 as at present, and make the fees for jurors the same as those of the circuit court; county judges and jurors now are entitled to $2 a day and six cents a mile travel. Jury lists would be supplied from time to time by the Rock county jury commissioners.

Holy Week Cuts Number of Social Events at Y. W.

Regular classes will meet at the Y. W. C. A. during the coming week but there will be fewer social activities than usual owing to holy week services in a number of churches. The bowling banquet will be held Monday night at 8:30 having been postponed from a previous date on account of the weather. Junior high school Girl Reserves will carry the Easter message to the inmates of the Rock county Jail Thursday afternoon when they will visit the institution and sing carols. HAYES FIRM GETS CITY PAVING JOB

Bid of $6,890 Is Only One Offered for North First Street Project.

Recommendation that the contract for paving two blocks on North First street, from North Bluff to North Wisconsin, be awarded to the Hayes-Fountain-Hayes company, Janesville, Wis., bid of $6,890.92, was made by the board of public works at a meeting Friday afternoon in the office of Mayor T. E. Welsh. The Janesville company was the only one to offer a bid for paving and $203.46 for excavation.

The matter now goes to the city council and it is probable the ordinance will approve the contract. Work must be commenced on May 1 and must be completed by July 1.

While the North First street hill was ordered paved in 1922, the project was put over until this year due to delay in receiving shipments of pipe. All the underground work is now in place and there should be no delays this year.

Lower Taxes in 1923.
By deferring the paving until now the property owners and city will benefit by a saving of approximately $500, as the lowest bid last year was $7,390.92, made by George Welch, Beloit. The Hayes firm bid $7,593.35 at that time.

The 1923 bid of the Hayes firm is $2,538 per cubic yard of paving and 30 cents per cubic yard for excavation. The specifications call for 2,583 square yards of paving and 226 cubic yards of excavation. The lowest figure for paving on this job in the 1922 bids was $275, and 95 cents for excavation.

The city's share of the job will be $1,666.35, while the balance of the cost will be assessed to the property owners on the two blocks to be paved.

Asphalt Macadam Job.
The North First street paving job will be asphalt macadam on six-inch concrete base. Owing to the steep grade, City Engineer C. V. Kerch has specified that natural aggregate, or pit run gravel, shall be used in the concrete base. This gives a rougher surface for the top section of pavement to grip.

Two inches of granite will be spread with asphalt on the concrete, making a pavement similar to that on Forest Park boulevard. Asphalt macadam was declared to be more advisable than asphalt, brick or concrete, owing to the steepness of the hill.

The smallness of the job was given as the reason for there being no other bidders.

BRIEFS BY WIRE
Berlin—President Eber's daughter, Annalee, is engaged to Dr. Wilhelm Jaeneke, an attaché of the foreign office and son of the proprietor of a leading shoe store that formerly supplied footwear to the ex-kaiser and his royal entourage.

Coblenz—German estimates that at least 3,000 individuals have been deported from the occupied areas by the allied authorities. Nice — The condition of George Gould, New York, who is still here, was reported greatly improved.

Eat and Get Thin

This is turning an old phrase face about, but modern methods of reducing fat have made this revision possible. If you are overweight and also averse to physical exertion, if you are tired, if you find the table and still want to reduce your excess flesh several pounds, do this: Go to your druggist (or write the Marmola Company, 4612 Woodward Avenue, Detroit, Mich.) and give him (or send them) one dollar. For this modest amount of money the druggist will put you in the way of satisfying your ambition for a slimmer trim, slim figure. He will hand you a case of Marmola Prescription Tablets. (Remembered! Tablets are not only harmless, but really beneficial to the general health. You don't need starvation diet or weakening exercises. Just go on eating what you like, leave exercising to the athletes, but take your little tablet faithfully and without a doubt that flabby flesh will quickly take unto itself wings, leaving behind it your new and healthy figure in firm flesh and trim muscles. "FEEL LIKE I'M 40," SAYS WOMAN ON 90TH BIRTHDAY

MRS. CAROLINE CLARK

Evansville — Emulating the example of her great grandmother for longevity, Mrs. Caroline Clark celebrated her 90th birthday at the home of her daughter Mrs. Charlotte Edwards, 237 Cherry street, Sunday surrounded by 12 of her progeny. Mrs. Clark has two living children, 11 grandchildren, 26 great grandchildren and two great great grandchildren. N. C. Clark of Milton is a son.

Mrs. Clark hopes to live to be a centenarian, like her great grandmother who died at 103. "I feel no more than 40," said Mrs. Clark on her birthday and no one who should see her go about her daily work would believe for a moment that she has lived four score and ten years. She reads without glasses and for herself and her room, and walks several blocks on days when the weather is good. Her husband saw service in the Civil War, fighting throughout the four years, and she herself vividly recalls when she helped serve coffee for the company of which John Brown was the captain. Her oldest grandson Fred Edwards served in the Spanish-American War, and Howard Edwards another grandson four years in the navy.

Mrs. Clark has two half sisters, Mrs. I. P. Blackwelder, Stanford University, Calif., and Mrs. Mary Boughton, Lawrence, Kansas and a half brother, George Boughton, Los Angeles.

But 12 of her relatives were present at the celebration on account of the condition of the roads and poor train service. They were her son, N. C. Clark, and daughter Beth Clark, and William Osborn, Milton; Mr. and Mrs. Howard Edwards, and three daughters, and Mr. and Mrs. E. B. McCoy, Evansville.

BROOKLYN

Brooklyn — With the death this week of Peter Christensen, one of Brooklyn's oldest residents is gone. He died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. C. Tasmussen, and lived six weeks of being 89 years of age. The funeral was held Tuesday. He was born in Denmark, coming here more than 50 years ago. Surviving are three daughters: Mrs. Martin Mason and Mrs. C. Tasmussen, Brooklyn; Mrs. Peter Olson, Oregon, and a number of grandchildren.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Watkins and Mr. and Mrs. Archie Watkins, Dayton, spent Wednesday at the Elmer Johnson home.

Ed Jacobson has a new car. L. E. Pennevel returned Wednesday from a three days' trip in Chicago.

Miss Kate Condon, Hollanda, and Elizabeth Grady, Oregon, spent Thursday at the T. J. Sweeney home. Otis O'Brien left this week to take up his work in Harrisburg, Pa., managing for the Advance Rumley Co., for whom he has worked in Porto Rico the past two years.

HARDING ECHOES—BORAH STAND FOR STRONG PROGRAM

body here assumes that the lofty body mentioned by Mr. Borah are beyond the scope of ambition of President Harding.

Opposition Expected
The movement to make Mr. Borah a candidate for the presidency began many months ago with the rally at Akron planned as the opening gun; but while the friends of Mr. Borah have been organizing, the announcement from Attorney General Daugherty has been made and impetus to any direct effort on behalf of Senator Borah hereafter a sort of anti-Harding war.

While the Harding men would naturally like to see their chief opponent expect H. Senator La Follette will command not only the delegates from Wisconsin but possibly some of the other western states. Some strategists do not think it a bad idea for Senator Borah to be out campaigning at this time because the more use of his type who strike out for individual prestige with the so-called progressive elements in the republican party the less likelihood of formidable opposition to Mr. Harding being built up by concentration on any one progressive.

And when the convention has made its nomination, Mr. Borah's support will be all the more valuable. He threatened to bolt the party in 1916 and again in 1920, but has played regular in both campaigns. Should he endorse Mr. Harding after the convention has been held, he will tend to keep the republican candidate mindful of the progressive forces in the party.

There is little doubt, even at this early stage of the game, that the 1924 campaign will involve no small extent the use once more of the terms "progressive" and "conservative" or "stand pat." Mr. Harding has always been allied with the latter wing of the republican party, but it is noticeable that when Attorney General Daugherty and others in the Harding entourage talk about "progressive" government they do not exclude the acts or purposes of the Harding administration and tend rather to construct the term "progressive" as meaning a government of righteousness and impartiality as between classes and interests.

Favors Farm Program
There is hardly a plank of importance, for instance, in the 24-point program of the national progressive conference, called by the friends of Senator La Follette in Washington immediately after the congressional elections last fall, which has not met with the approval of the Harding administration. If the fight as between "progressive" and "stand-pat" is to be staged on the agricultural voting areas of the west, the Harding administration stands ready to defend what it has done for the farmer through the war finance corporation and the new intermediate farm credit system of banking.

What Senator Borah, however, is more likely to do, to make things uncomfortable between now and the next convention is to stress the importance of some step on the part of the American government to assist in the world-wide economic situation.

Democrats Add Voice
President Harding and Secretary Hughes have said the time was not ripe for such action and would not be until the Ruhr situation was cleared up. Mr. Borah's cry for action never-the-less, will be taken up by the democrats, some of whose spokesmen, like James M. Cox and William Jennings Bryan, have already cut loose from definite formulas, and expressed a plea in general terms for the greater use of American influence in world affairs.

Mr. Harding has not forgotten the bitter feeling inside the republican party over the League of Nations controversy and is not anxious to stir up those who feel as do Senator Hiram Johnson. The latter is fully expected to support Mr. Harding for re-election, unless he can make a move to the convention some move is made by the president which the California senator can plainly say is inconsistent with the pledges given in 1920 concerning non-entanglement in European politics.

Senator Borah and Senator Johnson have split on this issue, the latter insisting that a world economic conference is nothing more or less than a League of Nations type of affair. The California senator, while viewing the world court proposal as harmless in itself, has announced his opposition to American membership simply because the court was created by the League of Nations. As the situation develops, the problem of President Harding in choosing which of the so-called progressives he will side with an international affairs—Senator Borah or Senator Johnson—will become more and more difficult but the president knows a good many things can happen in Europe between now and June, 1924.

PALMYRA

Palmyra — Several will have opportunity for office at the election here a week from Tuesday as a result of the village caucus held here Thursday night. Isaac Olson was nominated for mayor without opposition.

Nominated for trustees were: William Norris, 30 votes of 31 cast; Alva Jacquith, 24, and George Crapp 18; John Edmunds 22 and

H. Melster 17. John Crawley received 46 votes and nominated for clerk, without opposition. Charles Groves, with 31 votes and Miss Ada Stamen, 29, were placed on the ballot for treasurer. G. G. Bannerman received 38 votes for assessor, Louis Agen and John Gotz, are on the ticket for supervisor, the former having received 32 votes and the latter eight. Charles Williams has no opposition for justice of the peace and W. H. Uplog opposes Bert Assin for constable. Charles Bonnett, Fremont Melendy, and Dr. Dodson called the meeting. John Slacey was chairman and Louis Agen secretary, and Will Norris, Frank Koch, and Leonard Williams were tellers.

Mr. and Mrs. Harley Longley were in Milwaukee Wednesday. Earl Holsinger went to Jefferson Wednesday to receive treatment at Forest Dawn sanitarium for throat trouble.

Mrs. George Benedict returned Thursday from Milwaukee very much improved in health.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Weldmeyer, Wauwatosa, came Tuesday to visit her daughter Mrs. Ed. Gatz for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Gregory were visitors in Milwaukee Thursday.

C. J. Thayer, and A. R. Bannerman were in Janesville Friday. B. J. Breidenbach and William Wall were Whitewater visitors Friday.

ORFORDVILLE

Orfordville.—George Leng, Spooner, Wisconsin, and Oscar Leng, Spooner, were in Orfordville on Friday in attendance at the funeral of Jan Leng.—Orin Rime returned on Friday from a two weeks business visit in New York.—Ben Renley and Marvin Christianson went to Milwaukee on Thursday afternoon to purchase the stock of Merchandise for their new store.—Attorney Gross, Janesville, was in the village on Friday afternoon.—The roads are being broken out and made passable which since the storm have been untraveled, by reason of the drifts. Farmers are encouraging this work as the mud through the fields injures them and makes them untillable. Snowdrifts were indulged in during the warm spell until several passing on the street were quite severely injured by the misadventure, when the authorities of the village requested that the practice cease within the village limits.

TITLE PRIZE VI—PICK A TITLE AND GET $2.50

This is No. 6. $2.50 for the best short description of it in a line. Why not make a little family game of thinking up titles? Get busy when you get the paper.

The only rules for the contest are as follows:

No title may have more than twelve words.

Titles must be written on postcards.

Do not enclose titles in envelopes.

Titles must be in this office by Thursday night. Otherwise they will not be considered by the judges.

Address Title Editor, the Saturday and Sunday Gazette.

Mrs. Ellen Craig, Port Atkinson, is the winner of the $2.50 prize this week. This is the fifth time Mrs. Craig has tried, so you see she has a reward for her persistence.

It was a close second that Mrs. Charles Winsor, Evansville, came to the best title. She wrote, "And these please, without delay. The Gazette prize may come my way."

Among the honorable mentions this week are:

Mrs. D. A. Reese, Janesville—"A male holiday"; "Domestic exchange below par"; "Misplaced confidence"; "M. Houghton, Port Atkinson—"Another Master Solvent"; "What the winter overcoat yields up in the spring."

Edmund Van Galder, Janesville—"The lady who can manage the city manager."

PALM SUNDAY TO BE OBSERVED HERE

Churches Plan Special Services for Centuries Old Festival.

Janesville churches will observe Palm Sunday tomorrow. Catholic, Lutheran and Episcopal churches having special services.

What is this day which in the calendar of civilization, even among those who confess to no religious beliefs, is known throughout Christendom as Palm Sunday? It is a day which has an intimate association with a man whose brief life to a greater degree than other since time began, profoundly influenced the whole course of history, leading down into Jerusalem on this fateful day eighteen centuries since, mounted on the humblest of all the "beasts of burden"—symbolized of the meekness and simplicity of the doctrine which he preached—Jesus of Nazareth was met by the throngs which had already accepted him, who strewed his path with palm branches, crying, "Hosanna to the Son of David! Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord!" And thus stamped the day—Palm Sunday—which marked the beginning of the end of his remarkable mission on earth; and was to land five days later, to the tragedy of Golgotha.

With the day and its significance thus established, like many other Christian customs which have taken a place in the secular calendar, Palm Sunday has remained through the ages a fixed and important event, observed by Christian believers according to their doctrinal forms.

Palm Emblem of Triumph.

Many quaint and interesting ceremonies have arisen in connection with Palm Sunday. The palm throughout history has been to all people the emblem of joy and of triumph over foes. Its symbolic use by Christians in this connection is in token of victory over the flesh and the world; so it was that when the founder of Christianity rode into Jerusalem on the first Palm Sunday it was with the emblem of triumph, the palm, that he was joyfully greeted. Historians trace the observance of Palm Sunday back to the sixth century. The Greeks and other churches of the east observed it with great solemnity. With the spread of Christianity to the west, particularly the Latin countries, some of the rigid forms of the observance gave way to a more joyous celebration, and the day took on the nature of a floral festival second only to that of Easter itself. Among the Spanish, it was known as Pasqua Florida; and Spanish explorers having on Palm Sunday 1512, discovered what is now the State of Florida, that name was given to the land in honor of the festival.

Observed for Many Years.

The medieval chronicles, abound in quaint references to the observance of the day among the Americans, Lithuanians, Serbs and Croats, as well as in England and in Germany. In England the day was called, "Oliver or Branch Sunday"; and the celebration took the form of a long procession symbolical of the entry into Jerusalem, in which the participants carried palm and olive branches, and at the head of which was borne the figure of a child seated on an ass, quaintly carved in wood.

According to an ancient chronicle the faithful in Jerusalem were wont to rehearse Palm Sunday "after the customary exercises from cock crow to noon had taken place in the Anastasis and at the Cross, to go to the greater Church behind the Cross on Golgotha called the Martyrium. Here the ordinary services were held. At the seventh hour (1 P. M.) all proceeded to the Mount of Olives and to the cave in which the Lord used to teach; and for two hours, hymns, antiphons and lessons were recited. About the hour of Nine (3 P. M.) all went singing hymns, to the Imbomon when our Lord ascended into Heaven. Here two hours were spent in devotional exercises, until about five o'clock when the passage from the Gospel relating to the hymns and carrying branches and palms met the Lord, saying, "Blessed is he that cometh in the Name of the Lord;" was read, following which the procession dispersed at the sound of a trumpet to the Son of David."

Palms Are Saved.

Palms blessed on Palm Sunday and carried in the processions were later taken home by the faithful and used for devotional purposes. In the Christian churches where Ash Wednesday is observed at the beginning of the Lenten season, the sign of the cross is made upon the forehead of the devout; by the officiating priests is secured from the burning of palm branches which were blessed on the preceding Palm Sunday.

Brodhead—The Brodhead city election will be held at the city hall as there are but two offices to fill—one alderman in each of the two wards. C. W. Fleck and C. W. Seniors are candidates in the second ward. William Hahn and William Kibbe in the first ward. All other officers held over.

Mrs. George McKitt, Lulu Caradine and Dell Fleck are attending the independent telephone meeting in Milwaukee.

S. D. Fisher returned from Los Angeles Thursday, where he remained during the week. He was the victim of a painful accident at the high school building Wednesday. She accidentally fell against a window, glass cutting an ugly gash in her right wrist. Eleven stitches were required to close the wound.

Miss Georgia Marion Kearney returned to Delavan Thursday. She attended the funeral of her uncle, Mel Kearney.

The condition of Mrs. Lena Tomlin improved sufficiently to allow of her being taken to her home in Oxford Thursday.

Oscar Johnson of the Green County bank will serve in the grand jury in Madison next week.

Miss Estlin is home on account of the illness of her sister, Mary.

Charles Holsinger, Monroe, spent Wednesday here on business.

Mrs. W. R. Manger went to Beloit Thursday.

Frank Spencer, Brooklyn, was a business visitor in Brodhead Thursday.

News has been received here of the death of Miss Jane Long of Oxfordville. She had a number of relatives in and around Brodhead.

It costs $750,000,000 yearly to run the educational institutions of this country, according to President Angell, of Yale university.

Clyde Milbrandt went to Milwaukee Thursday on business. Mrs. Lucy Silverthorn was leader at the missionary meeting Wednesday at the Henry Long home—John Honeysett spent several days at the home of his brother, Fred, the past week—Miss Lulu Rose spent Wednesday in Janesville—Mrs. Ella Honeysett visited in Beloit this week—Cavan Fisher and Ray Parnell are ill with measles.

Announce Contest Winner, Tuesday

Friday was the final day for handing essays to compete in the contest, the winner of which will receive the $10 prize offered by Jesse Earle, president of the board of education. All high school pupils were allowed to enter and Thursday and Friday saw many themes pouring in to Miss Eunice Nelson, dean of girls, who took charge of the contest. Judges are to be selected by Prin. W. W. Brown, and each theme is to be numbered, the name removed, before judging. The winner will be announced at the dedication of the new high school exercises, Tuesday night.

JEFFERSON USED FOR HIGH SCHOOL FOR HALF CENTURY

When the high school moved from the old building to the newly-completed one Feb. 1, it was the third time in the history of the school that moving had taken place. The Janesville high school was organized in 1856 and its first graduating class was made up of three pupils. The school occupied, until 1925, the Jefferson building, which in the first few years quite fitted the needs. Then space was cramped and the building which has just been vacated was entered in the fall of 1895.

Four Boys Are Chosen to Enter Oratorical Meet

Sven Sorenson, R. J. Walsh, Philip Litzkow and Frederick Hyslop were winners in the oratorical elimination contest held at the high school Thursday afternoon. They will enter a contest at the high school about the middle of April to be open to the public, when one of them, and one of the four girls already selected, will be chosen to represent the local high school against Beloit at that place. Sorenson's piece was "Woodrow Wilson;" Walsh's, "The Power of Free Ideas;" Litzkow's, "The Reign of the Common People;" and Hyslop's, "Gratitude's Reply to Mr. Corry." Others entered were: Merle Hanson, Malcolm Haviland, Robert Drew, Lyle Mawhinney and Edward Schmidly. Girls who will enter the contest are: Misses Edna Connors, Phyllis Luchsing, Catherine Imman and Genevieve Hughes.

OLD HIGH SCHOOL BUILT AT COST OF NEARLY $50,000!

An interesting contrast is shown in the reports of the two meetings of the board of education when the bids for the present red brick building and the new one were opened. The former occurred Sept. 6, 1894; the latter July 11, 1922.

Back in 1894, the board received a terrible blow. It had been planning to spend about $40,000 on a magnificent new school to be a memorial and a structure to which the city could point with pride for years to come. And when the bids were opened, the cheapest was $48,700.

With much dickering, however, the lowest bid was forced down to $48,369, and that of Clark and Stewart for the amount was accepted. Then a little later came another blow. It had been planned to have the building on the west end of the lot which it now occupies. And one morning a member of the board went past the lot and saw a stake out in the middle of the road.

5 Night School Classes at End

Five of the 12 night school classes had final sessions Thursday night, as instructors for them will be out of the city next week, vacation for all public school. The five are citizenship, machine shop, two classes in typewriting and bookkeeping. Others will have two sessions next week Monday and Tuesday nights and will close up their work for the year on the final night. These classes are: Spanish, auto-mechanics, two dress-making classes meeting at night and one in the afternoons, drafting and shorthand. Attendance has been unusually good this year and interest has been high. Supt. J. M. Dorrans is already looking forward to next year when the use of the new high school building more fully will permit more and larger classes and better instruction. A class will be formed in any subject which a minimum of ten people ask for. It was a sign of joy to school pupils, Friday morning, to see flags on the buildings, for it meant the last day of school, until April 2. Every school, including the vocational, will be shut all next week, to reopen the day after Easter.

The Girl of Ghost Mountain

By J. ALLAN DUNN, Author of "A Man to His Mate," "Rimrock Trail," "The Man Trap."

Copyright by Small, Maynard and Company, and published by arrangement with McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

Sheridan, a young lawyer from New York with a bad lung, has come to Arizona seeking health. His room-mate on the Chico Mesa ranch is Red Jackson. They discover Holliester, a notorious outlaw, and a "ghost" called "Red," and drive him off, thereby securing his bitter enemy, Sheridan. Sheridan has plans to make a large irrigation project and with Jackson camps at the lake which is to be the water supply. The above is the beginning of the precipitous edge of El Monte del Muerte the figure of a girl. Around "Ghost Mountain" are clustered many superstitious tales. Sheridan becomes convinced that the figure is not a ghost but a flesh and blood girl.

"I'll tell you, Red. Before I came out here I was a lawyer. In New York I was a very good one, not a very bad one. And there are a lot of good ones there. I had some money, not much. I've had an education. I do with my lack of success. I was short of the great essential to getting by in New York—'pop.' When my trouble developed I lost what I had. I didn't care much whether school kept or not. They suggested Arizona and I wanted New York. I didn't know what was out here and I thought I couldn't get along without the push and the lights and the things that seem to make life worth living in New York. I figured I wasn't going to last long and I might as well crowd through. I had a home and a job and it frightened me. I had heard someone talk about Metzal and one place to me and I had read as another, as long as I wasn't cramped up with a lot of T. B.s.

"I had a horror of these sort of places. I'd seen something of them in the end, up in the Adirondacks. If I was going to get well, or if I was going to pass on, I wanted to go off somewhere by myself and fight it out or quit."

"Sure thing," said the Texan. "I know just how you felt. I'd feel the same way if I was laid out."

"I came up here and found Lake of the Woods. I couldn't do much but lie around in the sun and sniff the pines. Even after I stopped coughing, began to put on flesh, got some strength back, I couldn't take a full breath again—that was great. Red, to do that in this air—I didn't have much to do. Fishing and hunting and thought of taking up land. This country didn't really gripped me then. I got a Colt, the one I carry, and a lot of cartridges, and I started target practice.

"It was a long time getting the hang of it—I mean offhand shooting. I just couldn't take steady aim and I peppered target fairly well before long. Then—did you ever, when you were a kid, Red, stick pellets of clay on the end of a timber twig and flip them with a mark?"

"Sure I did. I sabbie what you're drivin' at. It's the right idea."

"One day I found I could flip out the bullets like that. And I kept on practicing. You know how the target is about guns. He wants to be another Kit Carson, right off the reel. I practiced drawing from the holster and I chucked up cans for my mark."

"It was fishing Ghost Creek, up in the foothills. I had a full mess for myself and I had just eaten them and was clearing up my camp. I had the prohibition met Holliester. He was out hunting strays, he told me, just as he was today, I suppose. And he was halfway drunk. Offered me a drink of whiskey. I said, 'No, thank you. I'm on the east fork, I reckon. I'm a law-abiding citizen, but I ain't passin' up a slug of good juice if it comes my way. But I don't want to get up on my feet. I'd turn a Sunday School Superintendent into the Apache Kid at one session, and they say it's getting worse. I like a bite to eat but I like a clean lake. That stuff 'ud pizen a rattlesnake blind. Eat holes in a Dutch oven. It'll get him some day. Yeh-ah, but I'm sleepy!'

"Five minutes later he turned in his chrysalis roll of blanket to say, 'Good night!'

"I'll bet you a month's pay, just the same, Sheridan, that was a set on top of Ghost Mountain. But Sheridan was asleep, beneath the stars that swam in a purple void above them, his mended lungs inhaling and exhaling the rare, crisp air."

DAIRY COW PUTS S'S IN WISCONSIN

Talking High Finances, Bossy Wins Supreme Honors in This State.

Nature made the Prairie states— but man and the dairy cow created Wisconsin.

"This statement is contained in a booklet of the Wisconsin Holstein association, issued by L. L. Oldham, secretary. Here are facts, worth considering in determining the future welfare of Wisconsin.

Wisconsin has slightly more than 2,000,000 dairy cows. The annual output of Wisconsin milk is figured at 9,000,000 pounds valued at nearly $200,000,000. Wisconsin's grain and hay is fed on the farm.

Out of every $100 received from farm sales, only $17 represents proceeds from the sale of crops.

Nature of Milk

Wisconsin has 2,807 cheese factories, 667 butter factories and 72 canneries. In these plants are made 70 per cent of the cheese supply of the U. S. A., one-tenth of the nation's butter supply and one-eighth of the condensed milk made in any other state. Every time the watch ticks off 60 seconds for every eight hour day, Wisconsin produces 5,600 pounds of milk, 1,650 pounds of cheese, 2,310 pounds of condensed milk, 553 pounds of butter and 138 pounds of ice cream.

Wisconsin has 1,759 herds fully accredited, containing 49,342 cattle with 2,705 herds tested once and found clean, containing 47,137 cattle. Altogether there are in Wisconsin 4,822 herds of dairy cattle under state and federal supervision.

Now what does all this mean? Wisconsin has become known the world around as the market place for dairy cattle and other good livestock. Wisconsin has 127 testing associations in operation in 49 counties and production tests made on at least 100,000 head of cattle. Last year more than 34,000 head of cattle, mainly dairy breeds, were purchased by out-of-state buyers and taken to every state in U. S. and many to foreign countries.

Livestock Revenue

It all means that Wisconsin is the biggest dairy state in the world with milk and good cattle the very foundation of the state's business. Wisconsin is making money from livestock. The state will continue to make profit from dairy cattle so long as the progressive men who have made these figures possible are continued such as T. B. tests, production testing and association work.

One biggest future before Rock county is based on the contention that Rock associated with Green, Jefferson, Walworth and Dane counties can become the outstanding distributor of the leading dairy state. The farmer dollar in Wisconsin is essentially a dairy dollar—or at least, a livestock dollar—and any effort that tends to increase the livestock interests of any county means putting in a solid foundation for prosperity. Dairying is the biggest business of Wisconsin and these counties named should be the heart of the true dairy belt in Wisconsin.

ARCADE No. 25
Pre-emptive Bids

A pre-emptive bid is a bid of more than one as a original bid or a bid of a greater number of tricks than required to overbid a previous bid by opponents. The object of such a bid is to give to your partner the information that the pre-emptive bidder's hand is of such a character that he must prefer one suit, as trump, and that, with that suit as trump, he can go game with but average assistance from partner; second, to shut out, if possible, adverse bidding by opponents—that is, to pre-empt the bidding.

The latter requirement is really the only excuse for the pre-emptive bid; that is, the desire to shut out adverse bidding by opponents.

For that reason pre-emptive bids must be high enough to effect this purpose; and only bids such as three Spades, four Hearts or five Clubs or Diamonds are of any value in shutting out adverse bidding.

The main player is too alert to the purpose of these bids to pass if he has any justifiable bid.

The following represent sound original three Spade bids by dealer:

Hearts—10
Clubs—9
Diamonds—A, 4, 2
Spades—A, K, J, 7, 6, 4, 2

Hearts—10
Clubs—K, 4, 2
Diamonds—A, K, J, 10, 9, 7, 5, 2
Spades—7

Hearts—7, 2
Clubs—K, Q, J, 10, 9, 7, 5, 2, 2
Diamonds—A, 4
Spades—A

There is really very little value in pre-emptive bids except against inexperienced players.

The experts are too alert to the possibilities of a pre-emptive bid and too quick to infer which suit the pre-emptive bidder is trying to shut out, to make such bids of any great value. For that reason, the novice should not try pre-emptive bids until he thoroughly understands their character and their purpose.

The partner of a pre-emptive bidder should not assist unless he has one or more tricks more than an average hand. A pre-emptive bid includes, as part of the bid, an average hand by partner, that partner must hold more than average strength to justify a raise.

ing chute at Metzal for they had to be started in as perfect condition as was possible after the long trip. The start was made long before sun-up and frequent halts taken for water and intermittent grazing. Sheridan, Jackson and two cowboys went with them, one of the punchers slated to go on to the junction with the main line at Ploche and see them properly transferred.

So it was mid-afternoon before the herd arrived at the loading chute, a hundred yards from the little depot and Sheridan rode ahead to see the agent about his cars. Metzal boasted one almost obsolete and wheezy engine for shunting purposes, relegated to the branch line for cattle purposes and its engineer and fireman were of the same character as their locomotive. The station agent was generally sleepy, infected with a Mexican manana that prevailed more or less in Metzal. There were two types of citizens in and about Chico Mesa, those who rose early, when the air was cool and sweet and bracing, and those who crawled out when the sun was high and the air within doors and out oppressive. There were, in effect, the hustlers and the loafers, and both seemed to find the climate suited their temperaments. Most of the loafers congregated in Metzal. All of them had one grievance, the airing of which they never ceased. This was Prohibition. The Mexicans made pulque and mescale. Nothing can stop a Mexican from sipping cactus and agave and fermenting their juices. He needs no still, no formidable clumsy apparatus; his chief ingredients grow everywhere. But the loading whites, who hung about the poolrooms and gambled with each other, or tried to set traps for taking away the money of the cattle-men and ranchers, by methods most indifferently honest, craved the whiskey with which they were saturated and, being no longer able to buy it in the labeled bottle, or from bond, surreptitiously consumed a substitute.

Blatchford's CHICK MASH

This is a carefully milled and prepared milk-substitute which contains a wider variety of essential materials than any other chick feed you can buy. That's why it starts chicks right, grows them rapidly, makes them early, and keeps them in cartons and bags.

APEX STEEL FENCE POSTS

This is the APEX WAY!

JUST a few blows with a sledge and you have a fence post that is well bedded in the ground and braced against all side pull. In one hour you can drive a whole line of APEX fence. This is the Time-Saving Feature of Apex Posts. Another advantage is that they last twice as long as wooden posts.

The first cost of Apex posts is slightly more than of cheap wooden posts, but they can be driven so rapidly and easily that a steel fence line is actually cheaper than one of wood costs. And there are no rotten bottoms and sagging fence to contend with.

Take no substitute for the genuine Apex Post. It is several steps ahead of all competitors. Let us show you the difference.

BRACED AGAINST ANY SIDE PULL

SOME OF THE RECENT IMPORTANT EVENTS OF THE WORLD TOLD IN PICTURES ON THIS PAGE

Left to right, Gene Sarazen, Walter Hagen, Johnny Farrell and Jim Barnes, photographed at Miami.

Everyone in Florida is enjoying these winter days of sunshine and warmth except Col. Bogie. The host of noted golfers playing on the many links that dot the south make life miserable for him. Here are four noted wielders of the niblick and brassie snapped ready for a four-some at Miami, Fla. Sarazen won the national open and professional titles last year. Hagen and Barnes have held national titles. Farrell is numbered among the leading golfers.

John McGraw isn't worrying about his catching staff. The veteran Frank Snyder is still able to do the bulk of the work.

Earl Smith has proved his value to the club and Gaston gives McGraw a good third-string man. Kernan, former Yale star, probably will be kept when the season opens. Anderson, a youngster, probably will be farmed out.

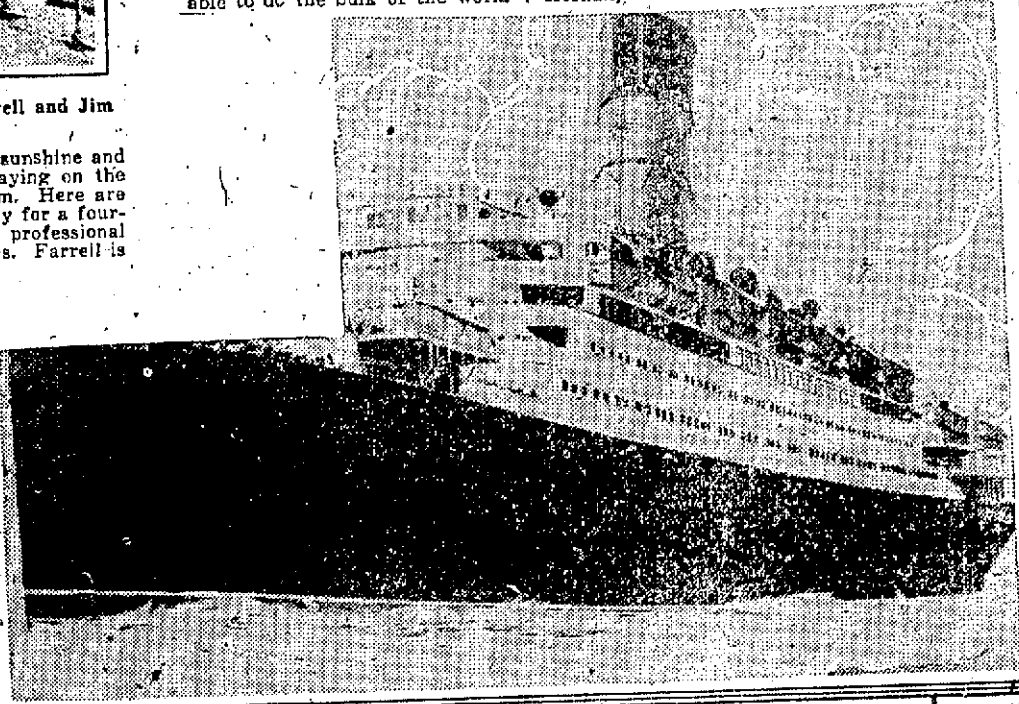

Col. Tillaghast Huston at the tee.

That deadly little golf bug has just sneaked right up and taken a healthy bite right where it would do the most good. So now Captain Tillaghast Huston, part owner of the Yankees, spends his time shagging golf balls over forty acre lots dotted with little flags. New Orleans right now.

Postmaster General Harry S. New on tour of inspection.

Former Senator Harry S. New, Indiana "lame duck," now that he's postmaster general, decided to find out just what makes the wheels go "round" in the postoffice department. So he made a tour of inspection with Harry S. Bellamy, fourth assistant, who told him what it was all about.

S. S. Franconia, nearing completion.

The S. S. Franconia, the first vessel to be designed especially for cruising around the world. The ship is said to be the last word in maritime luxury. The new touring palace is expected to arrive in New York in June and shortly thereafter will start on its maiden voyage.

Queen Elizabeth of Belgium, in foreground, wearing a veil Mohammeda fashion on trip up Nile.

"When in Egypt do as the Egyptians do." That seems to be the motto of Queen Elizabeth of Belgium, who was present at the opening of the tomb of King Tut in Egypt. The queen temporarily adopted a Mohammedan veil for her photo costume.

Miss Florence Myers.

Five dollars a month is the munificent salary paid to eight blue-blooded Georgian princes by Miss Florence Myers, Hinsdale, Ill., relief worker in the Near East. She's stationed at Tiflis, Caucasus.

Elmer S. Landes.

President Harding has just named Elmer S. Landes, a native of the Buckeye state, to one of the new directorships on the federal farm loan board.

Lieut. Gen. Sir Alexander Godley.

Lieut. Gen. Sir Alexander Godley, as commander of the British forces on the Rhine, is playing an important part in the crisis precipitated by the seizure of the Ruhr district by the French.

Mimy Clementi, bride of the Hon. Aldo Finzi, under secretary of aviation in the Fascisti cabinet.

Official Rome joined in celebrating the nuptials of the Hon. Aldo Finzi, under secretary of aviation in the Italian Fascisti cabinet, and Mimy Clementi, daughter of the celebrated musician, Maestro P. Clementi and niece of Cardinal Vanutelli. After the wedding Finzi took his bride honeymooning in an airplane.

Leo Kamenoff, above, and Gregory Zinovieff.

During the illness of Nicolai Lenin, soviet dictator, Leo Kamenoff is executing his duties. Asisting Kamenoff is Gregory Zinovieff and J. V. Stalin.

Mustapha Kemal Pasha, Turkish Nationalist leader, in knickers and golf stockings, with his aides.

Turkey's position has been considered precarious for some little time. But now it seems the crisis has been reached. Kemal Pasha, Turk dictator, has taken to wearing knickers and golf stockings. Next peace conference may be staged at the nineteenth hole of the Angora Country club course.

The simplicity of a Greek key border is the sole decorative note of this silk faille frock. A yoke of tiny pleatings and the absence of sleeves and a belt are features which mark it as one of the newest spring designs. The color scheme is brown and sand.

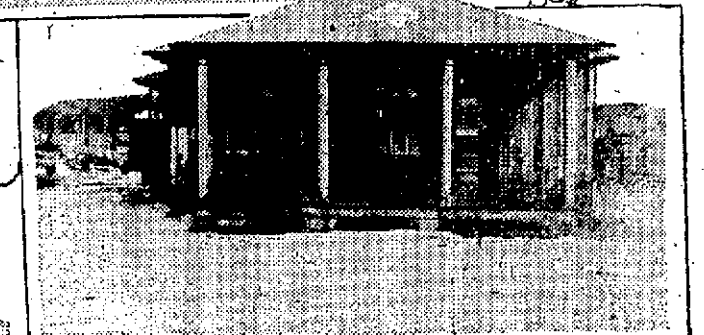

Mme. Maria Verone with Mme. Aurel in insert at right.

Two of the outstanding women leaders of the French suffrage movement are coming to America shortly. Mme. Aurel, well known novelist and one of the most ardent patrons of the French feminist movement, will lecture in some of the larger cities on French women. Mme. Maria Verone, leading woman lawyer, will attend the conference of the League of Woman Voters at Des Moines next month.

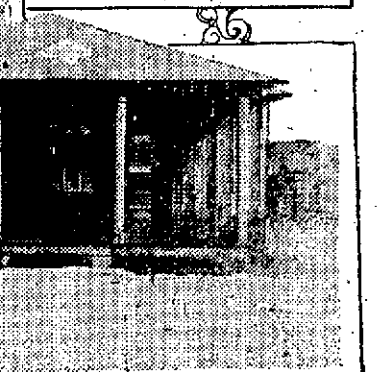

Top, Miss Daisy Manning, whose mother's body was found at the spot indicated by the policeman. Below, John Manning, being sought in connection with his wife's death, and the Manning home at Pompton Lakes, N. J.

New Jersey is in the throes of one of the most spectacular man hunts in the history of the state. Poses are seeking John Manning of Pompton Lakes, accused of the murder of his wife, whose body was found near the home bearing marks of numerous stab wounds. Jealousy is said to have been the motive. Posse men declare that the suspect will be taken dead or alive.

if the spring bride-to-be is very young she should choose simple and girlish dinner gowns such as these for her trousseau. The long, slender Egyptian creations are all right for the tall, dark-haired, mature looking brides but the small, winsome little blonds who are really just little girls should choose bouffant frocks such as these for their first dinner parties as matrons.

Georgette, tulle, taffeta and crepes are the favored materials for such frocks and these illustrations show how attractive the simple frock may be. Colors are shrimp pink, cocoa, turquoise blue.

Babe Ruth, christened George Herman but dubbed the "Bambino of Swat," is now paying another installment on the price of fame. Delores Dixon, who says she's nineteen, is suing Ruth for $50,000 in New York courts.

Last fall flappers were suddenly changed into Greek maidens with long, softly draped gowns and this spring the Greek maidens are coming forth to stroll down the avenue dressed as Egyptian queens. Here is but one of the hordes of Egyptian adaptations which are smiled upon by fashion today.

ALBERT L. CLOUGH

The "Lemon" Car

There Are "Black Sheep" Even In The Best Flocks

EVERYONE HAS KNOWN or heard of certain cars that were such persistent and incurable "bad actors" that this very expressive term of reproach was fittingly applied to them. Such instances, while rather frequent years ago, are much rarer today, and yet they still are met with. Reference is here made to the sporadic occurrence of individual defective cars among makes which are in general highly satisfactory and not to makes which as a whole are of inferior design, workmanship or material. In a great majority of cases the reason for a car proving a "lemon" is found in its engine, and most commonly in the cylinder block, which may be properly regarded as the "heart" of the car. If, through hasty and careless workmanship or lax inspection an engine gets into an owner's hands, the cylinder bores of which are inaccurately aligned, imperfectly circular in section, of unequal diameter or with crude working surfaces, it will never give good results, but will always prove inferior in regard to output, oil and gas economy and quietness, and nothing but a new block will afford entirely satisfactory relief. The distortion of imperfectly annealed cylinder castings is responsible equally with poor workmanship in many such cases, and it is only a waste of money and the source of bitter disappointment to fool with new pistons and rings in a "cranky" block. Inaccuracies in positioning and supporting the crankshaft occasionally give constant trouble, but bad cylinders are much more common. Careless assembling, in a lesser degree, is responsible for unsatisfactory performance of individual cars. Faulty alignment between the engine, clutch and transmission, imperfect parallelism of the axles and inaccurate positioning and alignment of the bearing mountings in important units sometimes conspire to cause excessive friction losses and the early failure of parts, which make individual cars unsatisfactory until such defects are discovered and corrected. If a car, when delivered, does not run well and cannot at once be made to do so, some such serious defects may be present and the sooner they are reported and claims made, the better.

BUYING A BIGGER BATTERY

P. H. S. writes: My battery is "all in" and I am dicker with the service station people for a new one. They say that my old battery was of too small capacity and want to sell me a larger one of the same rating that most similar cars carry. What advantage, if any, should I gain by taking the larger one? Answer: If your old battery was of less capacity than the best practice calls for, the installation of a larger one might be advantageous in case you have had trouble in getting high enough cranking speed, with your starter, when the engine was cold and stiff. The bigger the battery, the more energy is available for cranking the engine and the less the cranking speed drops when unfavorable conditions prevail. Furthermore, the wear and tear on a battery of adequate capacity is not so severe as on one of less ample size. In case of generator failure, a battery of ample capacity will meet the requirements of the electrical system longer than will a smaller one.

USING SAME HEAD-GASKET MORE THAN ONCE

H. T. writes: The manufacturer of my car recommends that cylinder-head gaskets should be used each time the heads are replaced, after scraping carbon. Do you believe that this is necessary? Answer: He probably has in mind the possibility of gaskets being damaged by carelessness in removing them and makes this recommendation to forestall possible trouble from water leaks. However, there is no reason why gaskets, that are in perfectly good condition, should be discarded and we believe that you can use the same ones as long as they show, after careful inspection, that they are not torn or otherwise damaged and not spread out, by being compressed, so as to be out of shape or too thin to "give" by the required amount to insure tight joints.

Questions of general interest to the motorist will be answered by Mr. Clough in this column, space permitting. If an immediate answer is desired, enclose self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ford cars delivered at Retail in February tells the whole story. The shortest month brings new sales record.

Acute situation certain as 6000 cars a day production fails to meet demand.

The fact that Ford sold as many cars at retail during the short winter month of February which is one-half as many cars as produced by the next greatest producer of automobiles in the world in six months of the year, including the fastest selling months, should convince you that the FORD IS THE CAR FOR YOU TO BUY.

Ford prices have never been so low. Ford quality has never been so high.
